WHAT TO DO DURING AN EARTHQUAKE

DROP (Drop to the floor)

TAKE COVER (Take cover under a table)

HOLD ON UNTIL THE SHAKING STOPS (Hold on until the shaking stops)

Proper cover means you are on the floor on your knees, face buried in your knees with your arms protect the sides of your face as your hands are hanging onto the furniture to prevent moving. This strategy also protects you from flying glass shards flying through the room. If you are not near a desk or table to use as cover, drop to the floor against the interior wall and use anything that can protect your head and neck like a book, bag or your hands interlaced covering your neck with your face buried into your knees.

CAUTION! NO DOORWAYS. Standing in a doorway leaves you extremely exposed, especially to flying glass. NO RUNNING. Panic kills, you can't outrun an earthquake, and you're probably running past good cover. DO NOT USE "TRIANGLE OF LIFE". This method is not approved and has been proven to be very dangerous. It leaves the individual exposed to falling and flying debris with no protection.
